

Building Tribal Coordinated Community Response to Domestic Violence

9:00 to 4:30 DAY 1

Welcome and Opening

Contextualizing The Criminal Justice System Response To Domestic Violence And Effective Reform Efforts

- History of criminal justice response to battering
- Defining the Tribal CCR approach

Why does domestic violence exist?

- Erosion of Tribal values
- It takes a village
- Accountability to adult and child victims

LUNCH

Key Elements/ Activities of a Coordinated Community Response

- Essential activities for enhancing victim safety, offender accountability, changing the climate in the community
- Drawing from our indigenous strengths as we consider a Tribal CCR
- Building a common philosophical understanding

The Risk to Battered Women and Children

- Universal battered woman
- Restoring men to honor
- Community responsibility

9:00 to 4:30 DAY 2

Standardizing Worker's Actions

- Contrasting victim's reality with institutional practice
- Identifying the focus of systems change
- Recognizing our interconnectedness and building safety and accountability into the intervention process

Policies, Procedures, Forms and Practices

- Text analysis
- What organizes workers to produce the result?

Investigation, arrest decisions

- Predominant aggressor considerations
- Understanding the key role of law enforcement reports in case actions

LUNCH

Enhanced Roles of Agencies/ Practitioners in a CCR

- The importance of understanding each partners role

Assessing Balance in a CCR

- Notions of power, co-option and disengagement
- Systems change work
- Bringing in the voices of battered women

Designing our Local Coordinated Community Response

- Developing strategies that respond to our communities unique needs